While the financial liability of the entire exhibition is the responsibility of the Fair Association, under the direction of its President, the coordination of all details of getting the Fair underway lies with the Board of Directors and the other appointed officers and superintendents.

All rules and regulations referred to herein will apply to each and every department of the Fair. They are made a part of the conditions under which entries are accepted for exhibit or contracts for Concessions are granted. All property being brought and kept upon said fairgrounds shall be at owner's risk, owner assumes all responsibility for any loss, damage, theft, or accident that may occur.

In the event of a conflict of general and special department rules, the latter will govern.

Express permission of any variation of these rules may be given by the Board of Managers, who are vested with the authority to give or refuse their consent, as they in their judgment believe to be in the best interest of the public welfare and to aid in the promotion and conduct of a safe, orderly and well-operated annual fair.
